LITERARY NOTES.

Lieutenant Totten, one of the officers who took part in the storming of the Corean forts and who is now executive officer of the training ship Minnesota, 18 preparing for publication an account of the Corean expedition of 1872.

Mr. Cable, in announcing his readings from his own works, makes the characteristically modest statement that he will in response to many urgent requests "render one or two Creele-African songs each evening; but they are not offered as musical performances, and he begs leave to ask that they be not criticised as part of the programme."

It is reported that Signor Edmondo di Amicis, the accomplished Italian author, is coming to this country not only to write a book about America but also to give a course of lectures. He is said to have been guaranteed the sum of forty thousand lire whatever may be the result of the lectures. He will, moreover, receive a share of any profits that

Mrs. Alice Meynell's promised article on the "Mystery of Edwin Drood" will appear in the next Century. The facts which Mrs. Meynell states were communicated to her by Mr. Fildes, the English artist employed to illustrate the novel. Some of his unpublished sketches are to be given with the article. Its author is the sister of the distinguished artist Elizabeth Thompson (Butler).

Forty-eight editions of Sir Thomas Browne's quaintly delightful trreatise, "Religio Medici," have been published. Thirty-two of these have been in English. A fac-simile of the first edition, which was printed by an unauthorized and unscrupulous bookseller and was full of errors, subsequently corrected by the author, has just appeared in England.

The Critic will undergo some changes in the consolidation which it has just effected with the journal known as Good Literature. The most notable of these is the insertion of selections from the best foreign periodicals.

Chinese Gordon, one of the bravest of modern soldiers, has an honorable hatred of publicity, and a sensitive shrinking from laurels and laudations. An incident recorded in the story of his life, which has just come from R. Worthington's press, illustrates these characteristics. He had sent his journal of the Tai-ping war home from China, " not wishing it to be seen outside his family. A Minister interested in the rebellion heard of the manuscript, and was so struck by its contents that he sent it to the press in order that his colleagues might have the benefit of reading it. Late one evening it so happened that Gordon inquired about his journal. He was told what had occurred. He rose from table, left the house, and posted off to the Minister's residence. Not finding him at home, he went to the printer's, demanded his manuscript, and gave orders that what copies had been printed should be destroyed and the type broken up. What eventually befell the manuscript is unknown; but it is certain that no one has seen it: in fact, there is every probability of its having been destroyed."

Salvini's impressions of Lear are to be printed in the February Century.

A new biographical essay on Poe by John H. Ingram will appear in the new Tauchnetz edition of Poe's works.

Mr. Julian Hawthorne's novel of "Beatrix Ranfolph" will shortly be brought out in book form in

The life of John Stuart Mill, in the series of " Engish Philosophers," will be written by his steplaughter, Miss Helen Taylor.
